The Illinois Equal Justice Foundation (IEJF), a 501 c 3 tax exempt organization, distributes funding appropriated by the State to support not-for-profit legal aid programs. The funding for the IEJF, which comes through an appropriation through the Office of the Attorney General, directly helps families in crisis, victims of domestic violence and seniors facing abuse and financial exploitation. The IEJF supports innovative, cost-effective legal aid programs that empower clients to resolve legal issues and regain control of their lives. These programs offer information, guidance, advice, representation and tools to help clients understand the legal system and their rights within it.

message from the President and Executive Director commitment

Christine M. Ory
President

The number of people in Illinois living in extreme poverty is increasing. For the more than 685,000 people in our state struggling to make ends meet on an annual income of less than $20,000 for a family of four, a legal problem can spell disaster.

Individuals and families who can barely afford food, shelter and other necessities simply do not have the money to pay for the services of a lawyer when they are confronted by an abusive spouse demanding custody, an illegal eviction, or the denial of special education services for a child with a learning disability.

For those who cannot afford to hire a lawyer, the legal aid system provides a critical safety net. Not-for-profit legal aid organizations help low-income families, seniors, children with disabilities and veterans meet their basic human needs, including shelter, safety, economic stability and education. In fact, a major study by economists at Colgate University and the University of Arkansas found that legal aid is the only public service that decreases domestic violence in the long term.

With the passage of the Illinois Equal Justice Act in 1999, the state of Illinois recognized that “equal justice is an integral part of the general welfare” [30 ILCS 765/5(g)]. The Act established a state appropriation for civil legal aid and created the Illinois Equal Justice Foundation to distribute state funds to legal aid groups throughout the state.

Legal solutions, like legal problems, vary in their scope and complexity. Therefore, the Illinois Equal Justice Foundation supports a range of services, from web-based legal information and telephone advice to mediation and full-scale litigation. Legal aid programs also partner with county courthouses, public libraries and community-based social service organizations to offer help where and when people need it, and to develop solutions to life problems, not just legal problems.

Last year the Illinois Equal Justice Foundation awarded $3,362,532 in grants to 23 not-for-profit organizations. These programs served the critical legal needs of 68,291 people and provided web-based legal information resources that were accessed more than 400,000 times.

The Illinois Equal Justice Foundation is grateful that its funding held steady at $3.5 million in 2008. However, this figure still pales in comparison to the average of $10.6 million spent on civil legal aid by the ten most populous states. Illinois ranks ninth out of these states in spending on these vital services.

In the following pages you will meet four people who avoided disaster with the help of legal aid programs funded by the Illinois Equal Justice Foundation. Please see pages 12-14 for a list of the grant recipients working to increase access to justice for our state’s low-income residents.

Equip for Equality

Special Education Helpline

The father of James, an 18-year-old high school student diagnosed with autism and bipolar syndromes, called Equip for Equality's Special Education Helpline seeking assistance at his son's upcoming Individual Education Plan (IEP) meeting. At this meeting, the school's representatives planned to discuss moving James to a therapeutic day school in light of recent behavioral incidents. Both James and his father believed that his neighborhood school was the appropriate setting for him and wanted to ensure that he finish his last semester of high school there. Equip for Equality provided self-advocacy assistance and written materials to help James' father prepare how to most effectively advocate for his son at the meeting. The meeting was a success and James was allowed to remain in his neighborhood school. James' father also successfully advocated to revise a component of his son's IEP and increase the level of support that he would receive to ensure his success at the neighborhood school. James' father remarked, "I was so proud about what I did at that meeting." This case is significant because Illinois lags behind most other states in compliance with federal requirements to include children with special education needs in their neighborhood school to the greatest extent possible.

Though state funding has made impressive gains over the past three years, Illinois still ranks ninth out of the ten most populous states in what it spends on legal aid. The average amount spent on these critical services is $10.6 million, while Illinois spends $3.5 million.

We pledge...

opportunity for all.

The mission of Equip for Equality is to advance the human and civil rights of children and adults with physical and mental disabilities in Illinois. It is the only statewide, cross-disability, comprehensive advocacy organization providing self-advocacy assistance, legal services, and disability rights education while also engaging in public policy and legislative advocacy and conducting abuse investigations and other oversight activities.

Land of Lincoln Legal Assistance Foundation, Inc.

Civil Legal Assistance to Families in Crisis – Housing

Martha is a 57-year-old homeowner who lives with and cares for her 15-year-old grandson. She purchased her home in 1974 and paid her mortgage faithfully until she suffered a back injury in 2005 and was no longer able to work. She applied for Social Security Disability (SSD) but had trouble receiving her initial payments. Because of her reduced income and the waiting period to receive her SSD payments, Martha fell behind on her mortgage payments but was able to catch up with the help of her family. Still unable to work and struggling to make ends meet on her reduced income while caring for her grandson, she fell behind on her mortgage payments again in the fall of 2007. She then applied for a loan modification, but her mortgage company told her that she did not qualify and foreclosed on her home. Martha contacted Land of Lincoln and they worked on her budget with her. Land of Lincoln then contacted her mortgage company with her new budget and was able to negotiate a forbearance agreement. Her mortgage company agreed to re-amortize her loan and dismiss the foreclosure if Martha continues to make her monthly payments.

to create stable communities.

Land of Lincoln Legal Assistance Foundation, Inc. provides free civil legal services to low-income persons and senior citizens in 65 counties in central and southern Illinois. Land of Lincoln's mission is to pursue civil justice for low-income persons through representation and education.

fact:

Extreme poverty in Illinois has increased while state funding for legal aid has remained level at $3.5 million. Over 685,000 people in our state struggle to survive on less than $20,000 a year (for a family of four). A legal problem can send these families into a downward spiral. In these situations, legal aid can mean the difference between shelter and homelessness; safety and violence; sustenance and hunger; economic stability and despair.

Life Span

Civil Legal Assistance to Families in Crisis – Domestic Violence

Evelena, who came to this country from Poland, lived for years with her citizen husband despite his frequent beatings. Evelena had developed a relationship with her husband Jim while he was working in Poland, and came to the United States to marry him when he was transferred back to Chicago. Once they lived here, Jim repeatedly promised to file immigration papers for Evelena, but he kept putting it off. Once Evelena got pregnant, Jim started hitting her. When their child was born, Jim told Evelena that she must obey him or he would have her deported. Jim told her that if she tried to leave him he would prevent her from taking their baby with her. Evelena, who spoke only Polish and had no friends or family in Chicago, felt that she was at Jim's mercy. When Evelena became pregnant again, Jim pushed her down the stairs causing her to suffer a miscarriage. Although terrified that she would be forced to return to Poland and leave her daughter behind, Evelena sought help at Life Span.

The bilingual Life Span legal staff filed an Order of Protection case for Evelena, providing her protection from Jim's abuse, temporary custody of their daughter and sole occupancy of their house. Additionally, Evelena qualified for protections under the Violence Against Women Act (VAWA) so Life Span began the filing process. Life Span will represent Evelena in any immigration proceedings. These legal interventions gave Evelena the freedom to end her relationship with Jim, knowing that she and her daughter could stay in the United States legally.

We pledge...

Life Span describes itself as a domestic violence agency that also provides legal services. Life Span provides a comprehensive approach to addressing domestic violence with services that encompass a full range of solutions: counseling for clients and their children; criminal court advocacy; civil representation in family law matters; and representation in immigration cases. Life Span serves the needs of domestic violence survivors in Cook County.

Veterans Rights Project

Shelley cancelled her auto insurance around the time that she was deployed to Iraq in August 2005. Apparently there was one more payment due and, since she was in Iraq, she was not aware of it until she returned in April 2006. She then paid it, but the overdue payment had already gone to collection and, even when paid, went on her credit report as a late payment. When Shelley tried to purchase a house, she found that the late payment was listed on her credit report and lowered her credit rating by 60 points, leaving her one point short of obtaining a loan. She contacted the insurance company to discuss the problem, but was unable to resolve the matter. After she contacted the Legal Assistance Foundation, a paralegal from the Veterans Rights Project (VRP) called the insurance company and brought to their attention that the client was protected by the Servicemembers Civil Relief Act, which affords certain protections in credit and civil matters to deployed service members. After speaking to several employees of the insurance company, they told VRP's paralegal that Shelley's only recourse was to plead her case to the credit reporting agency. However, Shelley received a call from the insurance company the very next day. They apologized for their insensitivity and told her that they would have the late payment removed from her report immediately if she sent them a copy of her activation papers.

fact:

The Illinois Equal Justice Foundation funds programs that provide protection from domestic violence, elder abuse, mortgage foreclosure, homelessness, consumer fraud and predatory lending.

We pledge...

to make an impact.

The Legal Assistance Foundation of Metropolitan Chicago works to provide high-quality civil legal services to low-income and disadvantaged people and communities. Through advocacy, education, collaboration and litigation, the Legal Assistance Foundation strives to empower individuals, protect fundamental rights, strengthen communities, create opportunities and achieve justice.

Champion of Justice

State Representative Patricia Reid Lindner

In April 2008, the Illinois Equal Justice Foundation and the Equal Justice Illinois Campaign, the bi-partisan effort to increase the state appropriation for civil legal aid, honored State Representative Patricia Reid Lindner (R, 50th) with its Champion of Justice Award.

Elected to the State House in 1992, Representative Lindner has demonstrated a deep commitment to the principle of “equal protection under the law” throughout her distinguished career. She has made protecting the legal rights of Illinois families a cornerstone of her legislative agenda. She was an original sponsor of the Illinois Equal Justice Act [30 ILCS 765/ (1999)] and serves as an active member of the Equal Justice Illinois Campaign’s Blue Ribbon Committee.

As Assistant Minority Leader and former co-chair of the Council of Women Legislators (COWL), Representative Lindner has been an advocate for protecting the legal rights of low-income women and children. Her work with COWL raised awareness of the need for legal assistance in securing safety and stability to women in precarious situations.

Representative Lindner is retiring at the end of the current legislative session. She has been a trusted advisor in our work and will be missed.

fact:

Illinois is fortunate to have the bi-partisan support of Attorney General Lisa Madigan, several state legislators, civic and community leaders and Equal Justice Illinois Campaign co-chairs Philip J. Rock, former Senate President and James R. Thompson, former Governor of Illinois—all of whom are leading the fight to increase state funding. They believe that an increase will benefit the state over the long term, reducing the need for costly government services and increasing the efficiency of our courts.
